

Encourage your kids to memorize with prizes and a carnival!

Every Sunday morning bring your kids to the church Library to recite their verses to any Librarian. Every Anchor Verse recited will earn a small prize like a sticker, brain teaser puzzle, ball, fun eraser, sucker, spinning top, etc. When kids are rewarded for it by someone other than mom and dad, they are very motivated to memorize Scripture.

The rewards are even more enticing during Anchor Verse Carnival season! Twice a year we have a carnival in the Library to reward the children in a bigger way. During carnival season the children not only get a small prize for each verse they recite but they also get a ticket to add to their personal carnival envelope, stored on the big bulletin board. These tickets accumulate for several weeks until the big day when the Library is transformed into a carnival with games like Bozo Buckets, ring toss and duck pond. The children use their tickets to play these games where bigger prizes are won. And in case you can't imagine just how many tickets these kids are capable of accumulating, click here to hear several verses and in some cases even whole chapters being recited by our kids! Send your kids to the church Library today.

The next carnival will be held on March 13 and March 20 of 2011. We will begin to accumulate tickets for that carnival on January 9th, 2011.
